- Designing and delivering innovative interventions in diversity and inclusion
- Applying diversity expertise at senior and board levels
- Contributing towards our ongoing diversity and inclusion research
- Developing business in the diversity and inclusion area with existing clients as well as through establishing new client relationships.

THE PERSON

We are interested in hearing from individuals who have:

- A strong academic background with a relevant post graduate degree and Chartered Psychologist status (or actively working towards Chartership)
- Excellent interpersonal and team working skills
- High levels of energy and drive with the commitment to make a real difference
- Willingness to travel nationally and internationally on a regular basis
- Excellent presentation skills and experience of presenting to large audiences.
- A clear appetite for business development.

THE OFFER

In return, you will receive:

- Competitive salary and benefits package, including performance related bonus, car allowance and contributory pension scheme
- 30 days' holiday, plus community and personal enrichment days
- Commitment to supporting your continuing professional development.

LOCATION

Flexible. You will need to be able to come into our Kidlington (Oxford) office at least once a month. Being able to visit clients' sites as a matter of course across the UK and internationally is essential.

Programming experience not essential, but extremely desirable.
